Killing Neuropathy Bob Armstrong III.2019-01-30 Many of the patients we've worked with over the years, have had peripheral neuropathy, and have come to our clinic feeling hopeless and depressed. Their medical physicians and neurologists who have told them that their nerves won't regenerate and they'll just have to live with this condition for the rest of your life! They are told that they will be confined to a daily drug regimen. They tell us that it sucks the life-blood out of them and doesn't even work.Let me set the record straight folks. Yes, nerves can and do regenerate, and your peripheral pain can be reversed with our specially designed protocol. We've seen it in our practice for many years. It's an amazing transformation. The National Institute of Neurologic Disorders and Stroke on peripheral neuropathy has stated, Peripheral nerves have the ability to regenerate axons as long as the nerve cell itself has not died, which may lead to functional recovery over time. Would you believe that you're not alone? There's estimated 25 million Americans, (and growing) that suffer from Peripheral Neuropathy; a painful and debilitating condition that causes nerve pain and affects almost 65% of people with diabetes. Whether you or someone you love is affected by Diabetic Peripheral Neuropathy (DPN), acquiring a basic understanding of the base cause of neuropathy with its various treatments is the first step towards managing diabetic nerve pain. Some testimonials of our patients.
Being in the Blueprint to Neuropathy program was life-changing! I am so much healthier now. I have adopted the Paleo lifestyle and am keeping the weight off too. I feel great; better than ever! I thank you Dr. Bob for everything! I feel I can continue this path on my own now. Thank you! Karen W.
I am relatively new to the program, this is only my third visit. I have already gone from a pain level of 8 to a pain level of 2! I have hope again and look forward to the future. Kim N.

Human Dimension and Interior Space Julius Panero,Martin Zelnik.2014-01-21 The study of human body measurements on a comparative basis is known as anthropometrics. Its applicability to the design process is seen in the physical fit, or interface, between the human body and the various components of interior space. Human Dimension and Interior Space is the first major anthropometrically based reference book of design standards for use by all those involved with the physical planning and detailing of interiors, including interior designers, architects, furniture designers, builders, industrial designers, and students of design. The use of anthropometric data, although no substitute for good design or sound professional judgment should be viewed as one of the many tools required in the design process. This comprehensive overview of anthropometrics consists of three parts. The first part deals with the theory and application of anthropometrics and includes a special section dealing with physically disabled and elderly people. It provides the designer with the fundamentals of anthropometrics and a basic understanding of how interior design standards are established. The second part contains easy-to-read, illustrated anthropometric tables, which provide the most current data available on human body size, organized by age and percentile groupings. Also included is data relative to the range of joint motion and body sizes of children. The third part contains hundreds of dimensioned drawings, illustrating in plan and section the proper anthropometrically based relationship between user and space. The types of spaces range from residential and commercial to recreational and institutional, and all dimensions include metric conversions. In the Epilogue, the authors challenge the interior design profession, the building industry, and the furniture manufacturer to seriously explore the problem of adjustability in design. They expose the fallacy of designing to accommodate the so-called average man, who, in fact, does not exist. Using government data, including studies prepared by Dr. Howard Stoudt, Dr. Albert Damon, and Dr. Ross McFarland, formerly of the Harvard School of Public Health, and Jean Roberts of the U.S. Public Health Service, Panero and Zelnik have devised a system of interior design reference standards, easily understood through a series of charts and situation drawings. With Human Dimension and Interior Space, these standards are now accessible to all designers of interior environments.
