Responding to Intimate Partner Violence and Sexual Violence Against Women World Health Organization.2013 A health-care provider is likely to be the first professional contact for survivors of intimate partner violence or sexual assault. Evidence suggests that women who have been subjected to violence seek health care more often than non-abused women, even if they do not disclose the associated violence. They also identify health-care providers as the professionals they would most trust with disclosure of abuse. These guidelines are an unprecedented effort to equip healthcare providers with evidence-based guidance as to how to respond to intimate partner violence and sexual violence against women. They also provide advice for policy makers, encouraging better coordination and funding of services, and greater attention to responding to sexual violence and partner violence within training programmes for health care providers. The guidelines are based on systematic reviews of the evidence, and cover: 1. identification and clinical care for intimate partner violence 2. clinical care for sexual assault 3. training relating to intimate partner violence and sexual assault against women 4. policy and programmatic approaches to delivering services 5. mandatory reporting of intimate partner violence. The guidelines aim to raise awareness of violence against women among health-care providers and policy-makers, so that they better understand the need for an appropriate health-sector response. They provide standards that can form the basis for national guidelines, and for integrating these issues into health-care provider education.

Working with indigenous knowledge Fhumulani M. Mulaudzi, Rachel T. Lebese. The aim of the book is to assist both local and international scholars in articulating the scholarly discourse on indigenous health attitudes, practices, and experiences. The indigenous lens that was used to generate and disseminate indigenous knowledge in this book will strengthen indigenous scholarship, thus making it accessible to a wider audience. In addition, the information shared in this book will add value for scholars and assist them with the indigenous knowledge needed to address sustainable development goals. This book is timely and topical as the discourse on the decolonisation of the curriculum is widely debated in the higher education space. The discourse on the scholarship of indigenous knowledge, as the tacit local knowledge that stems from cultural practices within communities, has not been well articulated in the current health science education milieu. Indigenous knowledge has remained overlooked and undermined for a very long time and the information remains untapped in local communities. The scholars who conducted the research on which this book is based unearthed a wealth of knowledge which was tacit in nature and translated it into implicit knowledge that can be documented and shared with other scholars globally. This knowledge will assist health care scholars in benefiting from knowledge, practices and cultural beliefs that will assist them in health care planning, teaching, evidence-based practice and further research.

African Nurse Pioneers in KwaZulu/Natal - 1920-2000 Mazo Sybil T. Buthelezi.2004 This book is about seven African nurse pioneers in KwaZulu/Natal from 1920 to 2000. The author captures the early nursing activities of the 1920s to 1970 and then moves to nurses that entered the health services in the 1950s. The author also presents two nurses that worked outside South Africa i.e. did their pioneering nursing in Saudi Arabia and the United States of America. The author does not scoop nursing out of its context but creates a narrative that resonates in lived experiences in a world dominated by the Africanization of poverty, the feminization of poverty, globalization, racism and xenophobia.

The Routledge International Handbook of Harmful Cultural Practices Maria Jaschok,U. H. Ruhina Jesmin,Tobe Levin von Gleichen,Comfort Momoh.2023-12-04 This handbook looks at cross-cultural work on harmful cultural practices considered gendered forms of abuse of women. These include female genital mutilation (FGM), virginity testing, hymenoplasty, and genital cosmetic surgery. Bringing together comparative perspectives, intersectionality, and interdisciplinarity, it uses feminist methodology and mixed methods, with ethnography of central importance, to provide holistic, grounded theorizing within a framework of transformative research. Taking female genital mutilation, a topical, contested practice, and making it a heuristic reference for related procedures makes the case for global action based on understanding the complexity of harmful cultural practices that are contextually differentiated and experienced in intersectional ways. But because this phenomenon is enshrouded in matters of sensitivity and prejudice, narratives of suffering are muted and even suppressed, are dismissed as indigenous ritual, or become ammunition for racist organizing. Such conflicted and often opaque debates obstruct clear vision of the scale of both problem and solution. Divided into six parts: • Discourses and Epistemological Fault Lines • FGM and Related Patriarchal Inscriptions • Gender and Genitalia • Female Bodies and Body Politics: Economics, Law, Medicine, Public Health, and Human Rights • Placing Engagement, Innovation, Impact, Care • Words and Texts to Shatter Silence Comprised of 24 newly written chapters from experts around the world, this book will be of interest to scholars and students of nursing, social work, and allied health more broadly, as well as sociology, gender studies, and postcolonial studies.

Handbook of Research on Shifting Paradigms of Disabilities in the Schooling System Maapola-Thobejane, Hlabathi Rebecca, Maguvhe, Mbulaheni Obert.2023-10-16 Children living with disabilities face hardships of many kinds that make it impossible for them to access quality education in the same way as their peers in the schooling system. All children are entitled to quality education and a supportive school environment that allows them to develop to their full potential irrespective of their disabilities. However, different factors make it difficult for many learners who live with disabilities to access, participate, and succeed in the schooling system. The Handbook of Research on Shifting Paradigms of Disabilities in the Schooling System focuses on the global trends in education that require the total eradication of every form of impediment in the process of accessing quality education and lifelong learning for people living with disabilities. Rooted in the philosophy of equal rights, human dignity, and social justice, access to quality education for all has led to the current drive for inclusive education. Covering topics such as inclusive schooling systems, visual impairments, and emotional disabilities, this major reference work is an essential resource for students and faculty of higher education, administrators of both K-12 and higher education, government officials, policymakers, non-profit organizations, researchers, and academicians.

Storied Inquiries in International Landscapes Tonya Huber.2010-06-01 Storied Lives: Emancipatory Educational Inquiry—Experience, Narrative, & Pedagogy in the International Landscape of Diversity contains exemplary research practices, strategies, and findings gleaned from the contributions to the 15 issues of the Journal of Critical Inquiry Into Curriculum and Instruction (JCI~>CI). Founding Editor Tonya Huber initiated the JCI~>CI in 1997, as a refereed journal committed to publishing educational scholarship and research of professionals in graduate study. The journal was distinguished by its requirement that the scholarship be the result of the first author's graduate research—according to Cabell's Directory, the first journal to do so. Equally important, the third issue of each volume targeted wide representation of cultures and world regions. "Current thinking on ..." written by members of the JCI~>CI Editorial Advisory Board explores state-of-the-art topics related to curriculum inquiry. Illustrations, photography (e.g., Sebastião Salgado's Workers in vol. 2), collage, student-generated art/artifacts, and full-color art enhance cutting-edge methodologies extending educational research through Aboriginal and Native oral traditions, arts-based analysis, found poetry, data poetry, narrative, and case study foci on liberatory pedagogy and social justice action research.

Evaluating the Clinical Learning Environment of First Year Nursing Students at a Nursing Education Institution in Gauteng Maggie Nyelisani.2016

Quality education and training should enable nursing students to master the theoretical and clinical component of a programme, clinical education (practica) forms a vital part of the curriculum of nursing programmes. Clinical education takes place in a Clinical Learning Environment (CLE) where the nurse educator monitors the needs of both the patient and students. Nursing students are provided with an opportunity to combine cognitive, psychomotor, and affective skills within this environment. A supportive CLE is important for first year nursing students for successful teaching and learning. Many nursing students view the CLE as anxiety and stress provoking; they feel vulnerable in the CLE as most activities are unplanned in relation to the classroom activities. In order to make the most of the first year students' clinical learning experience, the overall aim of this study was to by means of an Appreciative Inquiry (AI), evaluate the clinical learning environment they are placed in to rotate as part of their clinical component of the training programme. In this study a qualitative and descriptive design has been utilised. Nursing students in their first year reflected on their clinical experience and provided inputs regarding the CLE as part of their learning in comprehensive four-year programme. Data was collected by means of self-reported interview schedules which were distributed to the nursing students where they reflected their inputs regarding their experiences in the CLE. Data was collected using the four phases of AI, in the discovery phase the first year nursing students had the opportunity to reflect and (e)valuate the best of what is within the CLE. During the dream phase the first year nursing students had the opportunity to dream and envision what could be the ideal CLE for them to rotate through and work in, to gain knowledge and the required skills. During the design phase the first year nursing student had the opportunity to give inputs and make recommendations towards designing what should be the ideal CLE. During the delivery phase the researcher had the opportunity to present the recommendations to the involved stakeholders Recommendations were compiled based on the findings of the study, to enhance the clinical learning environment for first year nursing students and work towards educational excellence in this unique CLE.

Effectiveness of Reflective Sessions on the Academic Performance of Midwifery Students at a Gauteng Nursing College Ansie Susanna Alkema.2019

Midwifery is one of the core subjects in the four-year Diploma in Nursing Science at a Gauteng Nursing College. The high failure rate in midwifery theoretical assessment results has been of great concern. By developing students' reflective skills, students might be able to understand and learn midwifery theoretical knowledge better and the academic performance in midwifery theoretical results might improve. The purpose of the study is to determine the effectiveness of reflective sessions on the academic performance of midwifery students, enrolled for the four-year Diploma in Nursing Sciences at a Gauteng Nursing College. A quasi-experimental non-equivalent control group design was used to guide the study. Students in their second academic year were introduced to and thereafter attended midwifery theoretical classes in two separate groups. The theoretical material was divided into three block weeks, which was spread over a year. During the block weeks, they were exposed to conventional methods of education. In this study, reflective sessions in education were added to the one group (experimental group 137 students) from the second midwifery block onwards, which was expected to enhance their academic performance. Randomised selection was used; Group 1 (137 students) was selected as the experimental group and Group 2 (141 students) as the control group. The academic performance of both groups at the end of the first block was used as baseline data for the respective groups. Their academic performance (assessment marks) during the following two blocks was compared to the baseline data by means of statistics. Data analysis was done using multivariate analysis of covariance (MANCOVA) to compare the progress of the midwifery students over time. The results were presented in graphs, tables and charts. Ethics committee approval was obtained from the Faculty of Health Science University of Pretoria Ethics Committee, Gauteng Provincial Department of Health and study site authorities. In the research study, assessment results of a large group of participants (by estimation 278 students) was used to enhance validity. The purpose and significance of the study was explained to students and the researcher adhered to ethical principles such as respect, beneficence and justice. Students had the right to withdraw from the study at any time. All data is regarded as confidential and will be kept safe for 15 years by employing computer passwords. The study findings contributed to the existing body of scientific knowledge regarding the application of reflective sessions in nursing education. Students have realised the benefit and importance of reflective session, which allowed them to understand learning content better. And to academically perform well. Midwifery students improved their academic performance, which will allow them to complete their studies in the allocated time and be incorporated in the country's workforce. The results will be shared with educators at different nursing colleges.

Proceedings of the 2nd Biennial South African Conference on Spirituality and Healthcare Annemarie Oberholzer, André de la Porte.2018-06-11 Illness causes an existential crisis for people as it confronts them with the fragility, vulnerability and finitude of the human condition. Serious illness and hospitalisation can be challenging and life-changing experiences, especially in a context with poor resources and limited support. Healthcare workers meet patients in this space of disarray. Human qualities, such as faith, hope and compassion become crucial aspects of care. Patients' responses to these qualities highlight the importance of spirituality as part of holistic care, not only for the patients and their families, but also for the healthcare worker. The 2nd Biennial South African Conference on Spirituality and Healthcare brought together leading experts from different disciplines, and offered a variety of perspectives to explore the ways in which spirituality interacts with healing, growth and wholeness in healthcare. This volume addresses principles and practices for spirituality and healthcare, spiritual assessment, the role of community psychology, models of spiritual care, volunteers and children's spirituality in healthcare.
