Soldiers Once Catherine Whitney.2010-09 Catherine Whitney's brother, Vietnam veteran Jim Schuler, died at just fifty-three years old, while living in a flophouse. It had been sixteen years since, in one of his drunken rages, he had last seen his family. He was one of countless veterans who never recovered from the trauma of war and the stress of returning to live in a country that didn't care about his pain.The story of what happened to Whitney's brother resonates with humanity and has a clear relevance to current national concerns.Soldiers Onceputs a very human face on veterans' policies, finding in Whitney's personal drama a broader significance. It is both an investigation into her brother's loss and a meditation on the lost dreams of our military brotherhood.

Milwaukee's Soldiers Home Patricia A. Lynch.2013-04-08 As the country sought healing and peace after the Civil War, Wisconsin citizens took up Pres. Abraham Lincoln's challenge to care for him who shall have borne the battle. Their efforts paved the way for the establishment in Milwaukee of one of the original three branches of the National Asylum for Disabled Volunteer Soldiers. In May 1867, the first 60 veterans, including a musician from the War of 1812, moved to a single building on 400 rolling acres west of Milwaukee. By the end of the 19th century, the bustling campus boasted its own hospital, chapel, library, theater, and recreation hall, in addition to the grand main building. Subsequent wars and military conflicts created a need for additional buildings and services. Designated a National Historic Landmark in 2011, the campus continues to offer a healing environment for today's patients and stands as a testimony to advances in veteran health care.

Preserving a Home for Veterans Lauren Bon,Janet Owen Driggs, Terence Lyons, Richard L. Fox.2012 Literary Nonfiction. United States History. Art. Adapted from the position paper Preserving a Home for Veterans by Lauren Bon, Janet Owen Driggs, Terence Lyons, and Richard L. Fox. PRESERVING A HOME FOR VETERANS is an adaptation of the Metabolic Studio's January 2011 position paper on the Department of Veterans Affairs use of its largest land asset the West Los Angeles campus. Donated in 1888 as a permanent home for veterans, PRESERVING A HOME FOR VETERANS details the VA's current practice of leasing parts of the property to private entities (e.g. Enterprise cars, a private school, oil drillers), in violation of the 1888 deed and in spite of the more than 20,000 homeless veterans living in Los Angeles County. Part legal document, historical report, socially engaged artist statement, and activist call-to-action, PRESERVING A HOME FOR VETERANS is one of the many works that grew out of Strawberry Flag (Lauren Bon and the Metabolic Studio, 2009-2010), an experimental aquaponic strawberry farm deployed amid three under-purposed buildings on VA of West LA. For more than a year, a team of artists and veterans worked together to begin shifting the stasis that permeates this important historic property. Now in pocket book format, PRESERVING A HOME FOR VETERANS has been edited and enhanced with historic and recent photographs of veterans' life at the property. The book was printed by veterans at the Veterans Print Studio another project which grew out of Strawberry Flag and co-published by Les Figues Press as part of its TrenchArt series of new literature.

Tea for Veterans Reverend Mike Wanner.2014-11-09 There is great potential here to promote the wellness of: 1.Veterans 2.Churches 3.Service Organizations The livelihood of all three can be enhanced by taking the effort to embrace Veterans and offer to help them. The secret to success may just be a simple informal meeting where a Service Organization representative and a church representative meet a veteran in an arranged meeting where the priority is simply to chat a bit with no expectations by any of the participants. I remember well when I came back from Vietnam and went to church with my family. Of course, I had been away for four years and did not know anybody at the particular service I attended. Of course, I expected the same God would be there. I was appalled when there was little good news and a lot of financial reports that I referred to as the Gospel according to the checkbook. I have been to that church seldom since.

A Veteran's Cry-The Journey Home Michael E.

Jacobson.2010-12-30 A Veterans Cry was written for veterans. It was also written for people who support veterans be they friends, family or complete strangers. It was written to those of you who chose to protest- in what we have done, what we do now and what we will chose to do in the future. This book was written to give a little insight into a world that is sometimes filled with the unspeakable. It is a world, which is very often misunderstood. Many vets have trouble relating to non-vets and the reverse is often just as true. As in many professions of public service people sometimes have trouble understanding the full scope of our different jobs and therefore tend to forget that we too, are just people. It was best quoted to me one day by a friend, We were common people sent to do uncommon things. A Veterans Cry was also written as a continuing healing journey for me. In the seventeen years of my military service only a few were spent in combat situations. It was not until several years after my separation from the military that my memories came forward and asked to be healed from those things I thought were long buried; and therefore gone. These few pages were not necessarily things that happened to me. Most of them have come from talking and listening to fellow veterans. Some I knew personally, many I did not.

Helping Our Veterans Tammy Gagne.2020-05-11 United States service members work tirelessly to defend our nation every single day. US soldiers are stationed in nearly 150 countries around the world. These brave Americans make great sacrifices to keep America safe. Yet when they return from their duty in the armed forces, many ex-military members are faced with numerous challenges back at home. Some veterans have suffered physical wounds from their time in combat. Others are faced with mental illnesses as a result of the horrible things they have seen on the battlefield. In both situations, transitioning back into civilian life can be extremely difficult. By working together, though, we can help these heroes who have given so much of themselves to their country.

The Veteran Next Door Randall Baxter.2013-08-08 The Veteran Next Door is a compilation of stories from the Nationally broadcast radio show of the same name. The stories are from survivors of World War II. From a Jewish girl being given away at age 2 to save her from Auschwitz, fighting in Bougainville, and Guadalcanal, the experience of being black in our army and navy during this time period. From love stories to fighting across Europe and even being captured on the first day of the Battle of the Bulge, seeing the new German jets shoot down the B-17 flying in front of your own Flying Fortress, earning as many medals as Audie Murphy and not being awarded the Medal of Honor, and being surrounded by sharks for 5 days, being on board a ship that is breaking in half in a typhoon. And coming home to a small Tennessee county that has been taken over by a corrupt political machine. All true stories about our Veterans of World War II, Return to Viet Nam: One Veteran's Journey of Healing Linda G.

Myers, Arthur H. Myers USMC.2011-11-28 Art Myers is a Viet Nam veteran with memories. In 2005 he and his wife Linda traveled to Viet Nam with a group led by a psychotherapist who works with veterans affected by Post Traumatic Stress Disorder (PTSD). From the Mekong Delta in the south, to Hanoi in the north, it was a life-changing journey. Art's story is not unusual.

He was a sergeant in the Marine Corps in 1968, a radio repairman stationed at Da Nang during the Tet offensive. He saw only one day of combat, but that day affected every aspect of his life for 35 years. Many veterans suffer from their memories of their time at war. They may bury them, or deny them, or run from them, or act out in other areas of their lives. Alcoholism, drug addiction and suicide rates are higher than average, as are failed relationships and chronic unemployment. Art decided to return to Viet Nam, to overlay the memories of the young man during a terrible time with those of a man in late middle age. It was a good choice for him - and for his family. About the book Art says, I hope that talking about this journey of healing - and how it has changed me will help other veterans and their families. The idea of helping even one other veteran stop the nightmares and gain some peace made my story worth sharing.

Home to War Gerald Nicosia.2001 An epic narrative history that chronicles, for the first time, the experience of America's Vietnam veterans who returned home to fight a different kind of war. The courageous Americans who served in Vietnam fought two wars:

one on the other side of the world and one when they returned home. The battle abroad took place in war-scarred Asian hamlets, rice paddies, and jungles where thousands of Americans risked life, limb, and spirit in a conflict few of them fully understood. The second war began when these same soldiers came home to face another fight, this one for the hearts and minds of their countrymen, and for their own health, sanity, and peace of mind. Home to War presents a vivid portrait of a generation of American warriors who faced rejection by the nation in whose name they fought and virtual abandonment by the government that sent them to risk their young lives in Southeast Asia. In spite of formidable obstacles, including the still-fresh physical and mental traumas of the war, these young veterans joined together and committed themselves to heroic battles on the home front, from their unsung role in the antiwar movement to their unflinching campaign for medical help and compensation for Agent Orange exposure and post-traumatic stress wounds. Home to War tells the gripping stories of these veterans and the social and political movements they inspired. In its pages you'll meet Jan Barry, a disillusioned former West Point cadet who founded Vietnam Veterans Against the War, a volatile organization that would become a lightning rod for controversy and a beacon of hope for returning vets; Al Hubbard, a charismatic former Black Panther who led thousands of angry veterans to the steps of the nation's capital to protest the war and the government's shabby treatment of its veterans; Ron Kovic, whose outrageous -- and courageous -- stunts, uncensored comments, and provocative politics drew needed attention to the cause; Dr. Chaim Shatan, whose pioneering 'rap groups' speeded the psychological healing process for countless vets; Victor Yannacone Jr., who launched a precedent-shattering -- and ultimately successful -- legal case to gain compensation for veterans harmed by Agent Orange exposure; and many others whose inspiring struggles served themselves, their fellow soldiers, and their country. Home to War is a passionate work of contemporary history and an essential addition to the literature of America's Vietnam experience. Encompassing some thirty years of activism, readjustment, and healing, it is a fitting tribute to the unbreakable courage, idealism, and decades-long endurance of this generation of American soldiers.

The War at Home Shawn J. Gourley.2011-11-01 When your soldier returns home to you, it should be a happy and joyful time. You are glad your spouse is safe and sound back home and can't wait to get your life going again. Everything should be great! But what if the homecoming is anything but great? What if suddenly you can't connect, or you feel worlds apart? What if your vet is no longer interested in going out or being around other people? Maybe your spouse isn't sleeping well, or worse, becoming violent while asleep. Your vet may not be reconnecting with the kids and may seem uninterested in any new additions to the family. What if your spouse gets angry at small things or even becomes violent? What do you do? Do you ignore it and keep thinking it will get better if you give it more time? In February 2003, Shawn Gourley's husband, Justin, returned home from his tour in the Middle East where his ship was deployed to assist Operation Enduring Freedom. Cracks were already showing in his personality, cracks that would widen dramatically into full-on fractures by the time he returned home in June 2004 from his third tour that marked the end of his military career. For the next 4 1/2 years their relationship was very difficult, and at times, downright terrifying for her and the children. It wasn't until January 2009 that Justin was able to get treatment. He was finally diagnosed with PTSD in August 2009. Those are the broad strokes of their story, but the details of how Shawn fought to save her family will leave you transfixed until the end.

evident in every story. The memorials are as much for the living as the dead. They reveal the spirit of those who survived and offer comfort for families affected by the war. They helped to heal a nation torn by a most divisive war. The book can be a travel guide for your own journey to see these compelling memorials. For those who love a veteran, it is a catalyst to connect and open a conversation about past service still wrapped in silence.

Welcome Home / a Monument of Honor Ross Lewis. 2013-01-01

Welcome Home : a monument of honor is must-read, unique book written and produced as the historical American legacy dedicated to the honor, the dignity and humanity of Vietnam veterans. It is produced as an elegant, coffee-table style volume. Ross Lewis, Army veteran and author, traveled 20,000 miles, through fourteen states between 2010 and 2013 to personally visit and interview Army, Navy, Marine, and Air Force Vietnam veterans (men and women) to collect their precious stories and brilliant non-combat photographs of Vietnam. The powerful biographies include veterans who served in Vietnam from early 1954 through the evacuation of Saigon, twenty-one years later in April, 1975. The collection of brilliant photographs, taken by the veterans, are unparalleled in the history of Vietnam books. The personal stories include: Early American advisor's between 1957 through 1964; sailors aboard the USS Maddox in the 1964 Gulf of Tonkin incident. A marine medal of honor recipient who later became a three-star general; an Air Force chaplain who speaks about his own personal service and struggles; two West Point graduates who served in 1964 and 1966; a Marine Forward Observer who endured the siege of the Khe Sahn; a brown water naval officer who served in the Mekong Delta and, later, rose to the rank of four-star admiral,; and Air Force Special Commando who operated within a team of twenty, the last Marine to pull colors during the evacuation of civilians and military personnel from the embattled city of Saigon. Welcome Home : a Monument of Honor
