The Challenge of Crime in a Free Society United States. President's Commission on Law Enforcement and Administration of Justice.1967 This report of the President's Commission on Law Enforcement and Administration of Justice -- established by President Lyndon Johnson on July 23, 1965 -- addresses the causes of crime and delinquency and recommends how to prevent crime and delinquency and improve law enforcement and the administration of criminal justice. In developing its findings and recommendations, the Commission held three national conferences, conducted five national surveys, held hundreds of meetings, and interviewed tens of thousands of individuals. Separate chapters of this report discuss crime in America, juvenile delinquency, the police, the courts, corrections, organized crime, narcotics and drug abuse, drunkenness offenses, gun control, science and technology, and research as an instrument for reform. Significant data were generated by the Commission's National Survey of Criminal Victims, the first of its kind conducted on such a scope. The survey found that not only do Americans experience far more crime than they report to the police, but they talk about crime and the reports of crime engender such fear among citizens that the basic quality of life of many Americans has eroded. The core conclusion of the Commission, however, is that a significant reduction in crime can be achieved if the Commission's recommendations (some 200) are implemented. The recommendations call for a cooperative attack on crime by the Federal Government, the States, the counties, the cities, civic organizations, religious institutions, business groups, and individual citizens. They propose basic changes in the operations of police, schools, prosecutors, employment agencies, defenders, social workers, prisons, housing authorities, and probation and parole officers.

Strengthening Forensic Science in the United States National Research Council, Division on Engineering and Physical Sciences, Committee on Applied and Theoretical Statistics, Policy and Global Affairs, Committee on Science, Technology, and Law, Committee on Identifying the Needs of the Forensic Sciences Community.2009-07-29 Scores of talented and dedicated people serve the forensic science community, performing vitally important work. However, they are often constrained by lack of adequate resources, sound policies, and national support. It is clear that change and advancements, both systematic and scientific, are needed in a number of forensic science disciplines to ensure the reliability of work, establish enforceable standards, and promote best practices with consistent application. Strengthening Forensic Science in the United States: A Path Forward provides a detailed plan for addressing these needs and suggests the creation of a new government entity, the National Institute of Forensic Science, to establish and enforce standards within the forensic science community. The benefits of improving and regulating the forensic science disciplines are clear: assisting law enforcement officials, enhancing homeland security, and reducing the risk of wrongful conviction and exoneration. Strengthening Forensic Science in the United States gives a full account of what is needed to advance the forensic science disciplines, including upgrading of systems and organizational structures, better training, widespread adoption of uniform and enforceable best practices, and mandatory certification and accreditation programs. While this book provides an essential call-to-action for congress and policy makers, it also serves as a vital tool for law enforcement agencies, criminal prosecutors and attorneys, and forensic science educators.

California Police Officer Exam Prep 2019-2020 PELLET-B Test Prep Team.2019-06-05 The Post Entry-Level Law Enforcement Test Battery, commonly known as PELLET-B, is an aptitude test designed to assess if the candidate has the requisite skills to work effectively as a peace officer within the US state of California. 'Peace officer' is a term used in reference to any person with statutory powers to enforce the law, and this is inclusive of police officers, sheriffs, state troopers, and constables. Scoring highly in the PELLET-B exam is viewed by several agencies as well as academies as indication the person is prepared for a career in law enforcement. Although aspiring peace officers would like to be considered able to build a career in this field, there is also a law - Commission Regulation 1951 - stipulating that every peace officer must be competent in reading and writing to the level necessary for proper performance of the duties of a peace officer, and that level is to be evaluated through an exam that is professionally created. This guide is designed to help students achieve the highest score possible through numerous test questions. A detailed explanation of answers is also provided so that students can learn from any mistakes.

POST Basic Course Proficiency Test Study [P.C. 832.3(d)] John A. Weiner, California. Commission on Peace Officer Standards and Training. Standards and Evaluation Services Bureau. 1987 In accordance with a legislative mandate [PC 832.3(d)], the Commission on Peace Officer Standards and Training (POST) conducted a series of studies to examine relationships between scores on the POST proficiency test and measures of performance as a patrol officer. The proficiency test is presently administered near the completion of basic training in order to assess students' knowledge of the course curriculum. This report describes the rationale, procedures, and results of the total research effort. The study provided an opportunity to investigate other areas of concern. Results of these investigations are also described in this report. One study examined relationships between scores on the POST entry-level law enforcement test battery (reading and writing test) and on-the-job performance as a patrol officer. In another, the extent of learning via basic training was assessed, and relationships between learning and job performance were analyzed. The central issue addressed by these studies was essentially one of test validity. That is, the degree to which inferences from scores on tests are justified or supported by evidence. In this case, the inferences concerned examinees' levels of knowledge, or reading and writing abilities, and the likelihood of future competence as a patrol officer.

Research in Law Enforcement Selection Michael G. Aamodt.2004 This book is the most comprehensive reference ever written for individuals interested in law enforcement selection. The chapters contain meta-analyses (statistical reviews of the literature) investigating the validity of methods used to predict police performance. These methods include education requirements, cognitive ability, background variables (e.g., military experience, arrest record, discipline problems at work), personality inventories, interest inventories, physical agility tests, assessment centers, and interviews. The first chapter in the book is a short primer on meta-analysis that informs the reader about the purpose of meta-analysis and how to interpret the meta-analysis tables contained in the book. Chapter 2 describes the methods used to conduct the meta-analyses for this project. Chapters 3-11 list the meta-analysis results for the various predictors of police performance. Chapter 12 describes a meta-analysis of the relationships among criteria (e.g., performance ratings, discipline problems, commendations), Chapter 13 describes a meta-analysis of the relationships among selection methods, and Chapter 14 describes a meta-analysis of the relationship between the various criteria and sex, race, age, and tenure. Chapter 15 summarizes the previous chapters and identifies future research needs.

Entry-level Reading and Writing Tests for California Law Enforcement Richard A. Honey.1998 This study was undertaken to develop and validate reading and writing tests to be used for the selection of entry-level law enforcement officers in California. In effect, this study was comprised of two research projects: one resulting in a reading test and one resulting in a writing test. The tests were validated using both the content and criterion-related strategies of validation. The tests were content validated using job skills as the criteria and empirically validated using academy academic performance as the criteria. POST feels the language ability tests are appropriate for use as entry-level selection procedures for all law enforcement agencies in the state of California.
