Women Scientists in America Margaret W. Rossiter.1982 Winner of the Berkshire Conference of Women Historians Prize In volume one of this landmark study, focusing on developments up to 1940, Margaret Rossiter describes the activities and personalities of the numerous women scientists—astronomers, chemists, biologists, and psychologists—who overcame extraordinary obstacles to contribute to the growth of American science. This remarkable history recounts women's efforts to establish themselves as members of the scientific community and examines the forces that inhibited their active and visible participation in the sciences.

Notable American Women Susan Ware.2004 This latest volume brings the project up to date, with entries on almost 500 women whose death dates fall between 1976 and 1999. You will find here stars of the golden ages of radio, film, dance, and television; scientists and scholars; civil rights activists and religious leaders; Native American craftspeople and world-renowned artists. For each subject, the volume offers a biographical essay by a distinguished authority that integrates the woman's personal life with her professional achievements set in the context of larger historical developments.

Personal Balance Sheet Randall M. Craig.2007-07 Forty years, 10,000 days, 80,000 hours. Measure it any way you like, but this is about the length of a typical career. With so much life spent working, why not spend some time planning your career in an organized, strategic manner? - Are you a bit fuzzy on your career goals? - Is your work-life balance not under control? - Have you achieved some career success and are considering change -- but to what? - Do you feel unsure about networking -- and why it matters? - Are you uncomfortable discussing career issues with your manager?If you answered yes to even one of these questions, this book will help. You will learn: - To define your career goals and then achieve them (Reality Check Interviews) - How to take control over your balance by defining it properly (Personal Balance Sheet)- Networking that is focused on results, and doesn't rely on pointless conversations or 'schmoozing' (Give to Get and Bank of Me) - How to engage your manager and others in your career development process (Career Commitment Chart)- How to be successful after a change (Gap Analysis)In this book, Randall Craig provides the process and practical tools for each person to take control over their career -- and their life.

Practical Guide for Career Students N Stephen.2020-02-29 The PGCS (Practical Guide for Career Students) written out of career studying experience is a book prepared to guide students on what-to-do and how-to-do-them in order to achieve an excellent academic discipline record. It is also a guide for First Degree holders who want to move their first degree academic discipline success into a career job success. The book is pragmatic in application and it is categorized into four chapters, which are PGCS 1, 2, 3 and 4. PGCS 1 focuses on the foundation in which academic discipline must be built upon. The foundation involves the necessary conditions and knowledge of building academic discipline in different stages. It was developed for everyone who is working towards the establishment of academic discipline or making choice of field of studies. PGCS 2 focuses on how every student at the Senior Secondary level can begin the building of his/her academic discipline. Following the practical teaching of this chapter, students are on the way of giving birth to their academic discipline and as well starts its building. PGCS 3 focuses on how every student at the Tertiary level and even those about to join the level can grow their academic discipline in order to achieve excellent record. Following the practical teaching of this chapter, students are on the way of growing their academic discipline and as well starts its developmental transformation. PGCS 4 is a practical guide for post graduate level and that of field of works. It is prepared for employed and unemployed graduates with the focus on how those who has graduated from their first degree or HND can develop their academic career to the level of job career in order to gain competitive advantage in the labour market.

Successful Research Careers: A Practical Guide Delamont, Sara, Atkinson, Paul. 2004-04-01

It is not hard to be a research active academic, or to build a research group, or to create a research culture. Here are sensible strategies available to everyone, and that empower everyone in higher education. Seizing the opportunities, refusing to be a victim, and "most importantly" learning how the system works, are among the strategies available to anyone motivated to succeed. This book takes a radical, unstuffy look at higher education. It is of interest and relevance to anyone working in the higher education sector. Based on the authors' research on research groups, and on their experience as Head of Department, Dean and Pro Vice-Chancellor, the book provides advice for younger academics making their way in the system, and for more senior people who need to mentor research staff, build research groups and shape research-led careers. The book provides practical advice on key aspects of research activity: getting research grants, publishing in peer-reviewed journals, and writing books. The current climate of research activity is discussed in the context of Research Assessment, and the context of "glittering prizes".

Career Directioning Glenn A. Druhot. 2007-08-27

CAREER DIRECTIONING Career Directioning is a method of seeking your perfect job based upon your values, abilities and personality not just another job. The purpose of this book is to assist you in discovering the best right career for you. If you are searching for a more satisfying career, have been downsized, feel as though by changing jobs you will increase your earning power or you are starting your first job search the techniques in this book will help. This book is designed in a workbook format to assist you in your career management. You will find that each chapter builds on the previous chapter. The book begins by describing the emotional stages that we go through whenever there is a job loss. Then it proceeds to describe the ways to discover your perfect job. Its truly amazing how many of us lose sight of what we once were planning on doing with our career or worse yet have difficulty in describing what our ideal job would look like. I have spent my career listening to people say how dissatisfied they were with their jobs and careers. When I ask them what their passion is they often cannot answer what that could be. Do you know what your passion is for an occupation? Are you living the life that you want? Are you employed in a position that is unfulfilling? Are you looking for a career change? Have you been a victim of downsizing? It has been said that the only true success in life is to have lived life in your own way. What would life be like if you lived your life in your own way? When was the last time that you thought about it? Did you have a dream like most of us as you were growing up to be or to do something and life got in the way? Wouldnt it be wonderful if you could get up tomorrow and go to work in a position where you would feel as though you are contributing something to the organization? Or being employed where you are appreciated for what you do? Or better yet, work in a position that you know you are making a difference? Life is too short to spend time in a career that is not fulfilling. Too many people ask themselves what kind of job or career would be best for them. Why is it that we focus on the what rather than the how? Well, it is possible, but you must make it happen. You cant wait for employers to come to you. You have to take charge of the direction of your career direction yourself. What is your rationale for reading this book? Could it be one of the following? You are searching for a more satisfying career. You have been downsized from a job. You are starting you first job search. Feelings like your opportunities for growth are limited where you are presently. There is a basic conflict of values on the job. You are a

Baby Boomer and are now seeking a career that you hope will be more satisfying than what you have done so far in life. There has been a significant life event that is propelling you to make a career change. It could be something like a near death experience, divorce, turning 40 or 50, or physically unable to do the job that you have done in the past. You feel as though by changing jobs you will increase your earning power. You would like to pursue a dream or complete a mission. Maybe you were fired or laid off and need to make a career change. You have retired and now are seeking a rewarding career that you would enjoy more. You have climbed the corporate ladder and your priorities have changed. Often we allow corporations or organizations to manage our careers. In my private career coaching practice I have helped literally thousands of individuals who have allowed corporations to totally control their lives and when they have been job eliminated or the company is acquired by another public traded corporation they find themselves searching for a new direction with their career. I feel privileged like other ca
