China's Policy of Opening Up to the Outside World - The Economic and Technological Development Zones Elisabeth Herrle.2005-07-21 Research Paper (undergraduate) from the year

2005 in the subject Economics - Case Scenarios, grade: 2,0, University of Applied Sciences Hof, course: International Trade, language: English, abstract: A Survey of China 1.1. Geography Zhonghua Renmin Gongheguo, the People's Republic of China (PRC) is the world's fourth largest country (after Russia, Canada and the United States) covering an area of about 9.6 million square kilometers and stretching from the temperate to subtropical zones. In size and climate one can compare China with the United States, but its topography is quite different with more mountains and hills and a shorter coastline. These topographic features result in higher transportation costs and in a greater requirement for physical infrastructure construction. Hence, the economic development in China is more challenging than, for instance, in the United States. However, the natural resources China is endowed with are favorable to its development. One cannot only exploit coal, iron ore, or natural gas, but China is also blessed with the world's largest hydropower potential.1 1.2. Population About 1.3 billion people (July 2004 est.) live in the PRC, with a population growth rate of 0.57% (2004 est.). The life expectancy at birth of the total population comes to 71.96 years (male: 70.4 years, female: 73.72 years, 2004 est.). Moreover 90.0% of the Chinese population is literate, meaning that only 9.1% of the population of age 15 and over cannot read and write.2 ---- 1 cp. Démurger et al. Advantages and Disadvantages Florian Metz.2013-08-09 Seminar paper from the year 2013 in the subject Economics - International Economic Relations, grade: 2,0, University of applied sciences Frankfurt a. M., course: Advanced Business English, language: English, abstract: Globalization is one of the major topics and challenges of our time. It describes the process of the worldwide increasing interconnection of economy, politics, culture and environment. This compression affects individuals, society and institutions as well as countries. It can help to increase prosperity, social justice and global networking in order to make the world more equal. In the following seminar paper, the prime importance will be the look at the effects of globalization on the world economy in general. Despite the advantages of globalization, the negative side with all the disadvantages should not be neglected. Therefore, it is essential to look at the advantages and disadvantages that are created by globalization. The question is to ask, if globalization really has the force to make the world more equal and who are the winners or the losers of it ? The available seminar paper tries to answer that question with a critical analysis of the topic. Chapter two pays attention to the fact what globalization really is and tries to identify the major characteristics of globalization. Chapter three concentrates on the consequences and effects of globalization on the world economy. The fourth chapter tries to identify the advantages and disadvantages. The seminar paper ends with a short result in chapter five, providing a short summary of the whole theme.
